

Satellite Phones

People who live, work, and vacation in areas outside cellular coverage or in places with poor landline service will benefit from the direct link provided by Cellular Abroad's Iridium World Satellite Service. The SIM cards contain all customer identification and account information allowing shared use of phones with individual billing. Iridium also offers data up to 10.0 kbps. You will never miss a call again with Call Forwarding and optional Voice Mail features. You have the option to have Iridium calls forwarded unconditionally or only when you are unavailable (i.e. when your phone is turned off). You are notified on your phone and/or Iridium pager when messages are deposited in your personal mailbox, which you may access via satellite or terrestrial communications.

The Iridium 9500 Satellite Series™ Phone is a rugged solution to meet any of your global satellite needs. The 9500 phone is the first model of satellite phones released by Iridium. 9500s are no longer in production and a rarity to find - even used ones. Even though the phone is slightly larger and heavier than the 9505 phone, this option offers a cost-effective way to gain access to Iridium's completely global service. All new 9500 units come with a 1-year warranty.
